Probably No Raise in Values This Year

There is a possibility that raises in assessments recommended by the local board of trustees, acting in the capacity of a board of equalization, may not become effective. This is owing to the fact that the proposed increases were not put into force on or before the first Tuesday in September, as provided in the tax ordinance. But, it is also possible that, being a ministerial act, and not a legislative act, the ordinance can be amended and made retroactive.

So that there was no action on Wednesday evening on the thirteen protests against the raises read by the city clerk. For one reason or another the following filed written protests: Mrs. M. L. Hamlin, Mrs. Bernice O. Warren, Mrs. Maude I. Hogle, J. A. Beck, Philip Wilson, Mrs. L. A. Shipley, E. R. Hirst, Henry J. Hollison, Mrs. Helen H. Wolff, Miss M. E. Mower, Percy Parkes, Mrs. M. M. Moore, Mary Hodgkinson, and Guido H. Marx.

When the board reconvened as a board of trustees a communication from Mrs. Helen Wilson of the Bloomin' Basement was read asking an appropriation of $20 to fix up the park spaces on Ocean avenue before Serra Week, and also requesting permission to collect one dollar a month from merchants to maintain same thereafter. The proposals received the unanimous approval of the board and of the public present.

Mayor W. T. Kibbler expressed the opinion that it was time that Seventh, Ninth and Twelfth avenues be improved, and the board agreed with him. First consideration will be given Seventh avenue to relieve the parking congestion near the postoffice on Dolores street.

Miss Kate Conway presented a letter from former Judge J. A. Bardin to her setting forth the functions of the board of trustees of the Harrison library trust. Attorney Argyll Campbell pointed out that if the conclusions of Bardin were correct the imposition of a library tax would be illegal. An executive session was held to discuss this matter.

A bill for $18, sent in by Captain Jesse D. Derrick for various items connected with attention to a supposed mad dog was rejected.

The board met again last night.

Joint Meeting of Two Old Organizations

The first joint meeting of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts and The Forest Theatre organizations, was held last Monday evening, the president, Mrs. Mary E. Hand, in the chair. Nearly forty members were in attendance.

Among the reports read was one showing that since the opening of Arts and Crafts Theater last November, over $5,000 net profit had resulted from the plays presented. Since taking over Forest Theater property, Arts and Crafts has given a mortgage for $1150, and taken a deed for same, and has already reduced the organization's indebtedness to the Carmel Development Company for the purchase of Forest Theater land.

This includes the purchase of a new lot for the entrance way, the present entrance being on private property.

The president's suggestion that the Forest Theater directors, whose terms were about to expire, be re-elected, was unanimously adopted on motion of Fulton B. Foster. The members are as follows: Dr. A. E. Burton, Miss Blanche Tolmie, Miss Helena Conger, Mrs. V. M. Porter, Perry Newberry, William T. Kibbler, John N. Hilliard, Herbert Heron, and John B. Jordan.

The following were elected Arts and Crafts directors for the next year: Mrs. M. E. Hand, Miss M. DeNeale Morgan, Mrs. Edward A. Kluegal, Dr. Amelia Gates, Dr. A. E. Burton, Dr. H. A. Spoehr, Fenton P. Foster, John B. Jordan, Marcy Woods.

The following important amendment was adopted: That the Board of nine directors in charge of plays in July, to be known as Forest Theater plays, should also have charge of all dramatic activities of Arts and Crafts throughout the year. That is, the Board of Forest Theater play-directors will also serve as a play-committee for Arts and Crafts.

IN APPRECIATION

M. Louise Hutchinson

By Mrs. Edward A. Kluegal

The late Miss Hutchinson was for many years a citizen of Carmel and in all those years no one gave a better example of pure ideals and upright purpose. She was connected intimately with the various activities of Carmel and her house and garden were a shrine and an inspiration to every one who came in contact with them.

Having been supervisor of drawing in the Los Angeles schools for a great many years she knew and represented on cardboard and canvass the wild flowers of California, two hundred or more specimens being part of the equipment of the Carmel Library. She always maintained a shrine for birds, calling each bird intimately by name as it made its frequent visits to her garden.

Whatever was right, whatever was of good example, whatever was clean and good in its influence upon character and the community, was fellowshiped by this quiet, unostentatious personality. Such personalities concrete the character of the community, their example and influence are immortal, and make up the moral inheritance that is the best endowment of the generations to be.

Miss Hutchinson was endeared to a group of friends who count it now a privilege to have known her, and an honor to cherish her memory in commemoration of which a granite slab is to mark her final resting place.

The entertainment committee of Arts and Crafts has the pleasure of announcing that it has once again secured for the club the intimate charm of an evening with a poet. Helen Hoyt (Mrs. John Lyman) whose book "Apples Here in My Basket," is receiving praise from our most discriminating American critics, has very graciously consented to read from her own poems, published and unpublished, at the club meeting, on Monday, September 22d.

Three Great Shows For Pilgrimage Week

The cast of the Newberry-Mestres pageant, "Fray Junipero Serra," made up entirely of Montereyans, is complete, and is as follows:

Arthur Cyril, who will produce Belasco's "Rose of the Rancho" has almost completed the cast. He has several parts to give out to Spanish people or Spanish descendants. Mrs. Marie Gordon and George Kegg will play the leads.

The cast of "The Rose," is partly made up, as follows:

The Playcraft Club of Salinas will stage "The Expedition of Anza" on Monday, October 13. Miss Helen Ward will produce the spectacle.

LITTLE PILGRIMS

John McGroarty has been named to represent Mission San Gabriel at the Pilgrimage celebration.

Salinas has voluntarily offered to produce the pageant of the "Expedition of Anza" here during September Pilgrimage week. Pageant Director Perry Newberry accepted the offer. Miss Helen Ward of the Salinas high school will be in charge.

Caravans of costumed Serra Pilgrimage boosters with colorful Spanish dancers and musicians who will journey to neighboring cities on Monterey bay and in the San Joaquin valley will form an important part of Pilgrimage advertising. Fresno will be visited on Raisin Day, October 2.

The "Anza" pageant, with 200 people, will be a mighty spectacle. Those Salinas Big-Weekers know how.

The fancy dress ball at the Hotel Del Monte, which winds up the festival, will not be an invitation affair. Tickets are five dollars per.

Two of the best boosters for the big event are Mayor Benj. F. Wright and Rolin G. Watkins.

Sonia's Song Is Coming

A musical film-fantasy and concert, a Duo-Art arrangement, in which David Pezetki, Russian pianist, and Juanita Tennyson, American lyric soprano, will appear, is to be presented at Hotel Del Monte next Monday evening. This is a Sherman, Clay & Co. affair, thus assuring its fine artistic quality. The public is invited.

Grand Prix Goes to Peter Mawdsley

Peter, Peter, writeometer.
Had a Liz and couldn't keep her.
For a human act he one day fell,
And now he drives a Chev quite well.

A Mah Jongg run, 2, 3, 4, was the lucky number for Peter Mawdsley, official secretary of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce.

"What do you mean—lucky?" Well, really that information should have been in the opening paragraph of this story. Anyway, the answer is, Pete had the ticket which awarded him the Chevrolet touring car, given by the Carmel Humane Society.

How he got that ticket is an interesting story. He was on his way to the drug store; this took him past Paul Denny's Chevrolet salesroom. He stopped to admire the prize car, compared it with his old Ford and decided then and there to invest, though he had but sixty-three cents in his jeans. That fifty cent investment paid big interest.

Here's a New Road to Travel

Many Carmelites, looking for new scenic wonders off the main line, will find them in the drive from Carmel to Soledad, via Jamesburg, which may now be made without passing through Salinas. The report on this road issued by the touring bureau of the National Automobile Club states that from Arroyo Seco Lodge to Soledad the surface is good with a rough stretch into Jamesburg and good for the remainder of the journey to Soledad.

Winter Plays for Arts and Crafts

Arthur Cyril has under consideration for production in the Arts and Crafts Theatre within the next two or three months the following plays, for which he has secured the rights of production: Booth Tarkington's "Clarence," A. A. Milnes' "The Dover Road," and George Kelley's "The Torch-Bearers." In addition to these, three new one-act plays have been secured.

School Attendance Increases

Still another evidence of Carmel's rapid increase in population is afforded by school attendance figures, which show an increase of 22 per cent over last year. There are now 164 pupils enrolled in Sunset School—enough, or nearly enough to permit of the employment of a fifth teacher.

FLORAL TRIBUTES TO DUSE

In St. Ann's cemetery at Asolo, Italy, a simple and beautiful marble slab has been placed above the spot where Mme. Eleanora Duse, great Italian tragedienne, was buried when her body was brought back to Italy on an Italian vessel after the American tour for which she had hoped so much was ended by death. The tree-shaded tomb is on the brow of a gentle eminence overlooking Grappa. The beauty of Asolo has inspired Italian art for generations. Robert Browning made it the setting for "Pippa Passes." Duse lived for years in a house at Asolo, owned by her friend, Katherine Onslow, and her hope to earn money enough to buy it was part of the inducement that led her to leave Italy for the American tour, after having long refused to do so. Her grave now lies in one of its loveliest spots, and the slab is never without some tribute of flowers.

A talk-fest and feed was put on Tuesday night by Harvey A. Russell at Hinkels'. Those who sat around the table until both hands of the clock were at XII were: Fred R. Becholdt, Edward Hatton, Robert Cannon, Lewis Josselyn, William P. Silva, Charles S. Olmstead, Carmel Martin, Perry Newberry, Dr. Morgan, Captain Ishker, C. Sumner Greene, Tomas Doud, and Harvey Russell.

Once Famous Old Nantucket Now a Paradise for Artists

A paradise for artists is the quaint little island of Nantucket, thirty miles out at sea, off the Massachusetts coast, writes F. N. Hollingsworth in the Dearborn Independent. Not the Greenwich village type of artist, with bobbed hair and bare knees, dabbling in batik, free verse and Turkish cigarettes and holding "Bohemian" revel, not the long-haired Bolshevik male poseur—but the real, honest-to-goodness artists, who paint real pictures that discriminating people buy for their art qualities.

Once the "Glory of the Seas," rich and prosperous from its far-flung whaling industry, known the world over for its hardy seamen and sturdy ships, Nantucket suffered many reverses from the decadence of its industries and the successive wars that took such toll of its manhood and wealth that the whaling ships were swept from the seas, while picturesque old fish houses, oil works, cooper shops and seamen's cottages were empty and neglected.

Today Nantucket's greatest assets include these same forsaken old shacks and low-roofed cottages, along with her splendid sunsets, her ever-shifting sand dunes, the changing color of her moods; her rocks and shoals and deep booming surf; her quiet and peaceful isolation; her balmy air, and her many relics of the past.

The artist colony is not so very big, as yet; not so big, perhaps, as those at Provincetown and Gloucester. But then the entire population is not very big, anyway. Only 1,200 or so in winter and at the most ten thousand in summer when the hotels, boarding houses and privately owned cottages are filled with visitors. Nevertheless the artist colony has become an important factor, and has attracted a very desirable class of people to the old town, along with some wealthy "off-islanders" who make the island their vacation home, and they give a new note of color to the always picturesque streets. In the streets, as along the beaches and dunes, on the moors or up on the cliffs, perched upon the rocks, may be seen any day the artists at work with brush and canvas or pencil and sketch block.

Almost in the gutters of the narrow, winding streets one may stumble against easel and stool or some artist busily at work, unmindful of passers-by. They find many a picturesque human subject in the old-timers, too, as well as the Portuguese fishermen who supply the hotels and townfolk. They can find many families who still have the heirlooms inherited from their Quaker ancestors, queer bonnets, shawls and dresses, which they sometimes don for the painters. Then there are the plump little dark-eyed babies and olive-tinted girls of the fishermen, who are always willing models for the artists, many of whom dwell among them on Whale street in the studios remodeled from all sorts of old fish houses and shacks. Then there is the town crier, still an institution, and an important personage. Nantucket is one of only two towns in the country which still retain the town crier. His duties are manifold, for he has a multitude of announcements to make as he walks with measured tread through the town; rings the old Spanish bell three times a day, at seven, noon and nine at night, when the natives are supposed to put out the lights and go to bed; and acts as auctioneer and walking encyclopedia on occasion.

The daily auction market, too, furnishes much material for the artist and interests the visitor. A curious custom is the disposing of any surplus stock at the butcher shops by auction. The meats are displayed on a bench in front of the shop and after the town crier has gathered a good-sized crowd, the sale begins. Potatoes and other produce are auctioned off this way whenever there is a glut in the market. These auctions are a very ancient custom at Nantucket, and are so successful that frequently a sale is held every evening.

Strictly speaking, there are two artist colonies; one of them over at Siasconset or "Sconset" where the studios cost more, or the artists own their own property, and the newer one in the Whale street district of the town among the fishermen. This new colony is due particularly to the efforts of Mrs. Florence C. Lang, herself an artist, who realized the difficulty artists have in finding suitable quarters at anything like reasonable rental, where subjects for their work can be found at every turn. She has led in the remodeling and renovation of the many ancient buildings into studios with kitchenettes and modern conveniences which are rented to artists at as low as $50 and $70 for the season.

The biggest studio apartment is the Harbor View, and another noted one is the Candle House Studio. This is an old building where once the women dipped the candles that lighted the stately old mansions and the more humble cottages. The Anchor House is another, that has a huge anchor hanging on the outside. Among the artists foregathering on Nantucket are Alice Sands, A. F. Murgrave, Helen Whitney, and F. X. Ludwig.

Few places in America have more, perhaps, to offer an artist. Everywhere that one turns in Nantucket there are visible reminders of the early settlers, the departed whalemen and seafaring generations long past, that considered $50,000 a fair profit for a single voyage. There are traces of their handiwork in doorknobs fashioned from whalebone, or shell pictures on the walls of some old cottage, with strange trinkets and souvenirs brought from distant savage islands where their ships had touched. There is the old windmill, one of the curiosities of the island, probably the only one of its kind in America, in that it has wooden gears. It was built in 1686 and ground corn as late as 1892.

Safeguarding Auto Tires.

An inventor's idea of minimizing injuries to tires is to provide certain places on the sides of the shoe where the wall is weakened, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A blowout, due to any cause except direct puncture, is thus confined to one of these spots. Special arrangements are made to repair the rupture easily and effectively.

Theatrical Advertising For Local Merchants

An advertising campaign, sponsored by the T. and D. Jr. circuit of moving picture theatres, is under way on the Monterey Peninsula.

The plan is being worked out through the Theatrical Mercantile Advertisers, whose representative, C. B. Cord, former secretary of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, is now in Carmel in the interest of the campaign.

Campaigns of a like nature have been inaugurated in many other places. Under it the merchants participating receive five different kinds of advertising, including theatre programs, window display cards, screen ads, merchants' tickets and a certain amount of newspaper space once a week.

Merchants pay a rate for participating, buying the service outright for the five forms of advertising. The merchants will receive tickets to give away with purchases of 50 cents or more, which will be worth 10 cents on adult and 5 cents on children's admission for certain shows during the week.

"OUTDOORS" IS OUT

The first (September) number of the new national magazine "OUTDOORS" is out. It contains many lavishly illustrated articles descriptive of natural beauty spots throughout the country. To the motor tourist seeking an interesting objective it is of special value. The scenic pictures are numerous and beautiful, and the text is of unusual interest. Readers who cannot find "OUTDOORS" at their local news stands may secure a copy of the first number by sending ten cents in stamps or coin to "OUTDOORS," 425 Tenth St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

A Real "Old Curiosity Shop"

The Peninsula Upholstery Co. has a very intriguing collection of antiques and objects d'art at its store on Lighthouse avenue, in New Monterey.

A stroll through the place is literally a tour of the world on a small scale. Modern reproductions of chairs used by the Popes of Rome and Avignon jostle for attention with Colonial wardrobes of the most severe lines. The brass of old andirons gleam brightly. There are chests of camphor wood, old music boxes which jingle forgotten tunes; Chinese boxes with exquisite carved traceries or delicate inlay. The artisans of old Mexico are represented by jars and bowls of pottery. There is an antique four-post spindle bed. Many Colonial pieces look upon their more exotic neighbors with coolness peculiar to "the land of the bean and the cod." adv

ELIMINATE THE HOUSE FLY

The importance of concerted, organized effort to get rid of flies on the part of whole communities, not only cities, but suburban and rural neighborhoods as well, can not be overemphasized, according to the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture. By the most painstaking care one may prevent all fly breeding on his premises, but it will avail him little if his neighbors are not equally careful. Some sort of co-operation is necessary. One of the first and most important elements in any antily crusade is a vigorous and continued educational campaign. It has been the experience of those who have undertaken such crusades that people generally regard the fly as a somewhat harmless nuisance and that the first work of the campaign was to bring the people to a realization of the dangers from flies and the possibility of getting rid of them.

The antily crusade is a matter of public interest and should be supported by the community as a whole and engineered by the health officers. But health officers can do little toward the necessary work of inspection and elimination without funds, and therefore the support of the campaign must manifest itself in increased appropriations for public health work. Very often it is lack of funds which prevents the health officers from taking the initiative in the antily crusades, and there must necessarily be much agitation and education before they can profitably take up the work. Here lies a field for the best energy, initiative and leadership of civic associations, women's clubs, boards of trade, and other community organizations.

Correct this sentence: "Carmel's clean streets are an inspiration to other communities."

Short Bits Relating to The Seven Arts

O'NEILL PLANS TRIAL THEATRE

Eugene O'Neill and his associates are to operate two of the so-called experimental or laboratory theaters next season in New York. Two plays by O'Neill are listed—"The Great God Brown" and "Desire Under the Elms"; also, a stage version by him of the Book of Revelation. Other plays they say they will do are "The Colonnade" and "The Saint," by Stark Young; "The Murder in the Whistler Room," by Edmund Wilson; Congreve's "Love for Love," Rostand's "The Last Night for Don Juan," a new dramatization by Jacques Copeau of Dostoevskis "The Brothers Karamazoff," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "a Gilbert-and-Sullivan revival in the spirit of the seventies."

GREAT WRITER NEARING END

Anatole France, celebrated writer, who is now more than 80 years of age, is reported to be on the verge of death. Few men have received the eulogies this great writer has been accorded for his work. It has been said that "he must be recognized not only as the world's greatest living writer, but as a man who holds the history of twenty centuries in the hollow of his hand."

Students have long recognized the merit of this man's thought. He is credited with being in our era "the great stimulator, because he believes in nothing at all so beautifully and so simple that he is inevitably a stimulus to questioning and thought."

Such men may pass to the beyond, but they leave that with us which never fades nor dies.—S. F. Chronicle.

DEMAND FOR SMALL PAINTINGS

The tendency among well-to-do people to forsake big country mansions in favor of smaller residences has brought about a striking change in the demand for paintings of the old masters. This has been noticeable during the past months at public auctions in London.

It appears that the day of the big canvass is past, people picking up small paintings more suitable for small houses or flats. In fact they have been buying by the square inch where their forefathers bought by the square yard to fill the huge walls of rooms in big country mansions.

At a recent sale of the Duke of Westminster's pictures, several big Rubens were sent home because the experts and dealers refused to make a single bid for these "white elephants." At a sale of the princess royal's pictures a painting nine feet square got a bid of only two shillings per foot, while a Velasquez bought only eight guineas. Other paintings of anything less than four feet sold readily.

Have Percy Parkes build your home. He builds them right.

ABOUT CONRAD

A well-known novelist, writing of Joseph Conrad, pays the following tribute:

"A really great man of letters has gone."

"Conrad was more than that. He was the exemplar of courage. His spirit was indomitable."

"The average college man who feels that he has been called to write what is in his vision, so that others less fortunate may read and understand the divine comedy of life, would shrink before the task set for himself by Joseph Conrad."

"At thirteen he found himself an orphan in his native city of Cracow, Poland. He sought the sea and shipped as a sailor on a French vessel. His education was, perforce, trifling enough."

CELLULOID FILMS

Celluloid films so thin that 254,000 of them could be packed into a space an inch thick have been produced by the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce. They were made by dissolving the celluloid in amyl acetate and dropping the solution on a clean water surface, allowing the acetate to evaporate. These films are intended for use in connection with some X-ray studies the bureau is undertaking.

NOTES

G. D. Smith of New York paid $75,500 for the little quarto containing the fourth edition of Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis" and the first of "The Passionate Pilgrim." In the Capell corner of the library at Trinity College, Cambridge, is a nearly identical volume which cost the original owner three cents.
